FAQ:

Which kind of issues are governed by the whistleblowing policy?

Anyone (employees, customers, vendors, suppliers, stakeholders) can make a whistleblowing complaint relating to violation of integrity and ethics. The issues can include the following but not limited to,

- Inaccurate financial records like expense statements, invoices, vouchers, etc.
- Conflicts of interest situations
- Absence or weakness of internal controls
- Suspicious transactions
- Wastage of organizational funds
- Any fraud to be reported.

What is the procedure to report any incident, including all available reporting channels?

You can lodge a complaint, provided it is genuine and made in good faith,

- With your line manager or the Whistleblowing (WB) Officer or Audit Committee. Company wise Audit Committee details are provided in whistleblowing policy.
- In case you feel, you don’t wish to report to your immediate line manager, you can report one level up.
- You can also make anonymous complaints and reach out to the WB Officer.
- You can also write to ethicsindia@godrejinds.com
- You can make a complaint via email.

The WB Officer is responsible to receive and record any complaints under this policy.

What are the steps taken for resolving reported issues?

- The WB Officer is responsible for investigating the matter and to ensure confidentiality of the complaint.
- Once a complaint comes to the WB officer, the Investigation team (reports to WB Officer) will cover all aspects and obtain evidence for each of the allegations made. Experts may be called from industry, to investigate matters, depending on the nature of the case.

- All evidences will be corroborated with adequate proofs and documented.
- On documenting evidence, the suspect is called for an inquiry. The panel will include the Investigating team, representatives from HR and Business.
- The Investigating team prepares a report and WB officer then submits it to the Business and HR, for recommended action.
- Final action is the responsibility of the management.
- Cases are reported to the Audit Committee on a quarterly basis.

What are the expected investigation timelines?

A case would be investigated within 4-6 weeks and report would be submitted for action.

What are the measures adopted to protect the anonymity of whistle-blowers

You can make anonymous complaints under this policy. The Whistleblowing Policy assures the complainant that there will be no attempt made to establish its identity.
